My name is Jennifer Waye, and I am asking for your support to attend the 2027 PSAC National Triennial Convention as an opportunity to deepen my involvement in the union, strengthen my leadership and communication skills, and contribute to the broader labour movement.

As Communications Officer for CEIU Local 90113, I am responsible for keeping members informed, engaged, and connected. Attending the convention would provide valuable opportunities to learn effective communication strategies, exchange ideas with delegates from across the country, and bring back best practices that will enhance member engagement and advocacy within our local.

My commitment to the labour movement extends beyond my role with Local 90113. I was elected as a delegate to the PSAC St. John's Area Council and later elected Secretary. In this role, I support collaboration among locals, coordinate activities, and maintain records. In 2026, I also helped organize Pride activities in partnership with fellow Area Council activists, promoting inclusion and solidarity within our community.

In June 2026, I attended the PSAC Atlantic Triennial Convention as a delegate for CEIU Local 90113. The experience allowed me to build meaningful connections, actively participate in debate on resolutions, and gain valuable insight into issues affecting our members. It reinforced my commitment to continued union engagement and leadership.

I also serve on the Newfoundland and Labrador Federation of Labour Standing Committee on Occupational Health and Safety as a representative of PSAC Atlantic. This role has strengthened my understanding of workplace health and safety issues and further developed my advocacy skills.

The National Triennial Convention will allow me to build new relationships, learn from experienced leaders, and gain a deeper understanding of national priorities. I am committed to bringing that knowledge back to support our members and strengthen our union at the local, regional, and national levels.
